

Facebook Friends

Category: Blog

written by Valkris | March 6, 2022

Did some pruning today, went from 117 “friends” on Facebook down to 91; and of those 4 are one person who keeps losing access to their accounts, along with another 2 accounts from one person. There are now 3 of which are dead. And at least another dozen that are not friends as much as they are acquaintances or people from long ago.

That brings us down to 72, and of those a chunk are involved with a local nonprofit I work with and another set are 2 different parts of extended families that I am not involved with. A third set is from a game I play, to which we are not really friends...

I’ll continue to prune down as time moved forward. There is one who blocked me, and today I blocked a set of questionable followers. I also reset my permissions such that only friends can see my posts, while I can be found publicly, I believe the posts are now for friends only.

Such is life... too many ‘non’ friends watching what I do, and that I did not like; so today I made some changes.